Two Girls Slain, Others Wounded In Upstate Home

Mother and Two Sisters Found Hacked Severely by Sharp Instrument, Coroner Reports

Men at Work

Father and Two Older Sons Were Working at Time, Officials Say

Lyndonville, N. Y., Sept. 12 (AP).—Two girls were found slain, and their mother and two sisters were hacked severely by a sharp instrument in their home in this Orleans county community today, Coroner David Fraser said.

Coroner Fraser identified the dead as Ruth Dunham, 15, and Carol Dunham, 4.

In serious condition in a hospital at Medina, N. Y., nine miles away, was their mother, Mrs. Earl Dunham, 45, whose wrists were slashed; and her daughters, Frances, 9, and Shirley, 11, who suffered severe head wounds.

Hiram Squires, a neighbor, discovered the tragedy, Fraser said, when he saw smoke issuing from the home, investigated and found Carol's charred body, swathed in a blanket apparently drenched with an inflammable liquid, in a downstairs room.

Ruth's body was found in an upstairs bedroom.

The mother was found unconscious in a locked closet, bleeding from wounds in her wrists, the coroner said.

An ambulance took her and two surviving children, who also were unconscious, to a hospital.

The husband and father, George, and two older sons, Floyd and Harold, were away from home at the time. They are employed as farmhands.

Recall 1,800 Workmen

Pittsburgh, Sept. 12 (AP).—Approximately 1,800 furloughed workmen, some idle for months, were recalled today by three railroads in the Pittsburgh district as the result of increased shipments of ore, steel and coal.

The Pennsylvania Railroad put back to work 1,560 men at several points; the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad recalled 200 and the Pittsburgh and West Virginia returned 30 to jobs. In addition, the district was expected to share in the recall of 800 workmen to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad's system.

Killed in Auto Mishap

Syosset, N. Y., Sept. 12 (AP).—Frank Rhue, Jr., 18, of Freeport, N. Y., was killed late yesterday when the coupe in which he was riding overturned after it struck a car on Woodbury Road.

George M. Longbottom, 17, of Dunellen, N. J., driver of the car in which Rhue was riding, was booked on a charge of homicide at Nassau county police headquarters, Mineola. Rita and Veronica Schildknecht, sisters, of Northport, N. Y., who were riding with the young men, suffered slight injuries.

Killed in Explosion

Apparently ignited by the pilot light of the range in the gas-filled kitchen of the home of Mrs. Bertha Fraser at 107 Carter street, Newburgh, Sunday noon, an explosion shattered the dwelling and killed her son, James A. Fraser, 43, alone in the house at the time. He was a World War veteran. Mrs. Fraser and her two daughters returned to their home from services in Grace Methodist Church a few moments later.

Bury Aviators

Berlin, Sept. 12 (AP).—Der Fuehrer, a newspaper in Karlsruhe, just across the Rhine from the French-German border, reported today that two French air force officers who were killed in a battle over German territory last Friday were buried in the local cemetery yesterday afternoon with full military honors.

Gold in Pastures

Stung!

Turkish Visitor

Budapest, Sept. 12 (AP).—The contemplated visit to Moscow by Turkish Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu today caused speculation throughout eastern Europe as to its effect on the lineup of the neutral nations.

Says This Country Is Self-Sufficient

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—Lammot du Pont, the industrialist, said today achievements of the chemical industry in the last quarter century had made this country self-sufficient.

"Never again will our industrial production, which depends upon chemistry, be disrupted by wars beyond our shores," said the president of E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Co. in a statement.

"Domestic chemical achievements in the last quarter century stand as a solid guarantee of American self-sufficiency," he said.

DuPont declared that in contrast with conditions during the last World War, the nation today does not rely on imports for nitrates, potash and materials for producing dyes.

DuPont said he believed "every important American industrial and medicinal need" would be filled by American factories "whatever the emergency stemming from the present European conflict."

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 12 (AP).—Governor Lehman directed the state agriculture department today to "take all steps" to prevent profiteering in food stuffs because of the European war.

"Because of allegations of profiteering and unreasonable increases in the prices of food stuffs," Lehman said, "I have directed the commissioner of agriculture and markets immediately to investigate the situation and to take all steps within his power to prevent unfair practices."

Sources close to the governor said he refused to reveal sources of the profiteering charges but declared "there have been hundreds of them."

Meanwhile, State Agriculture Commissioner Holton W. Noyes said the investigation already is under way.

"I have detailed representatives of the department throughout the state to make detailed investigations of alleged increases in food prices and expect a report within the week," he asserted.

Noyes said he is "not certain what steps the department might take" if unfair practices are disclosed but promised the department's "every effort" to see that any offenders are punished and any profiteering is stopped.

Last week, some residents of Niagara Falls circulated a petition to President Roosevelt recommending the government "through its proper authorities immediately invoke powers at its command to end this practice (price increases)."

Update New York retail merchants blamed the price rises on many foods and meats on what they termed "over-buying and hoarding," and said they would be "only temporary—until the hysteria ends."

Jalopy Worth $220

Kansas City, Sept. 12 (AP).—Lee Houts, 17, and two of his pals put in $4 each last summer and bought a 1921 model T. They are a little bewildered by an assessment notice valuing the jalopy at $220 and levying a $33.33 tax.

Late Crops Suffer

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 12 (AP).—Prolonged drought has lowered production of practically all late crops in New York state and forced many farmers to haul water for household and livestock uses, the state agriculture department reported today.

Even should adequate moisture arrive, the department said, crops would benefit little because they are too nearly mature or have too little time to grow between now and the arrival of killing frosts.

The state's average pasture condition of 50 per cent normal is "practically as low" as a September 1 condition as on record, Chief Agricultural Statistician R. L. Gillett asserted. He said many dairymen report their cows are getting no food from pastures.

"On many farms," he reported, "the corn crop is light, both the fodder and the grain, and a large amount of that grown for silage is

Adirondack Line Bus Destroyed by Fire Here Monday

Not One of Thirty-Seven Passengers Injured but Most of Their Luggage Was Ruined

Monday afternoon about 3:45 o'clock fire, of unknown origin, destroyed one of the large buses of the Adirondack Short Lines when the bus caught fire on the Boulevard, just outside the city limits. The 37 passengers in the bus escaped injury, although most of their luggage was destroyed in the fire.

The fire was discovered shortly after the bus had crossed the city line by one of the passengers detecting the odor of smoke, and calling the attention of Carl Yetzer of Saugerettes, driver of the bus, to the odor.

Yetzer stopped the bus and requested all of the passengers to alight and then attempted to extinguish the fire with his coat, but his efforts proved futile and within a few minutes the entire bus was on fire.

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy said the exact cause of the fire had not been determined. The two gas tanks, holding about 75 gallons of gas, did not explode, but the flames blew off the fill caps on the tanks, igniting the gasoline in the caps.

The fire threw off heavy clouds of smoke that were visible in many sections of the city. The Kingston fire department was called and stretched a long line of hose from the nearest fire hydrant but the fire was beyond control.

The fire tied up traffic on the Boulevard for a short time. All of the passengers were transferred to another bus and resumed their interrupted trip.

Will Try To Avoid Horror, Suspense

Washington, Sept. 12 (AP).—Radio's three major chains have agreed to try to avoid "horror, suspense and undue excitement" in presenting news of the European war.

This pledge by the three—National, International and Mutual—was announced last night by Neville Miller, president of the National Association of Broadcasters.

Announcement followed a conference by broadcast company officials with Chairman James Lawrence Fly and other officials of the federal communications commission.

Provisions of the agreement include: Radio audiences should be cleared by informed whether news is censored.

Broadcasts from Europe should be by Americans as far as possible.

News broadcasts will remain in strict control of the broadcaster regardless of whether sponsored or unsponsored.

Moscow, Sept. 12 (AP).—"Liquidation" of six violators of Soviet Russia's "southern frontier" was reported today in the newspaper Red Star.

The country from which the six crossed the frontier was not specified, but it possibly was Rumania or Turkey. The report said two were shot while trying to escape and the other four were "liquidated."

The same newspaper said a spy named "Ignat" was arrested within the western frontier and after a trial at Sholensk was "given what he deserved." The report indicated he was charged with espionage on behalf of Poland and Britain. He was tried by a special military tribunal.

Three were announced settled. An action for goods sold and delivered brought by Abe Masors against Jennie Goodman, Lawrence Levine for plaintiff and H. Westlake Coons for defendant. An action brought by Frank Sotille against James Edward McGowan, contract. Flanagan & Kaercher for plaintiff and Michael Moses for defendant. An action for property damage brought by Lloyd Embree against Selma Porter and Richard Porter was also settled. Andrew J. Cook for plaintiff and Turner and Murphy for defendant.

The following day calendar was made up for next Monday, September 18, at 2 o'clock to which time court recessed and all jurors were excused until that time. Nos. 10, 31, 32, 42, 47, 49, 51, 56, 58, 59.

Big Senate Fight In Prospect Over Repeal of Arms Embargo

Adelaide H. Wilkie First Woman On Ulster Grand Jury

Monday afternoon the September term of County Court was convened by County Judge Jonathan D. Wilson of Orange county who opened the term in place of County Judge Frederick G. Traver, who is recovering from a recent operation.

Judge Wilson named Matthew Van Tassel of New Salem foreman of the grand jury and Jesse A. Myer of Mt. Marion, acting foreman. The grand jury entered upon its deliberations under the direction of District Attorney Cleon B. Murray and Assistant District Attorney James G. Connelly.

Adelaide H. Wilkie of the town of Marlborough has the distinction of being the first Ulster county woman to serve upon the Grand Jury. Some time ago a law was passed authorizing women to serve on a petit jury and at that time it was expected that women might serve on grand juries but after several had been summoned they were discharged from duty. Since then and in 1938 the law was amended and the portion referring to women serving was clarified and it is now legal for women to serve on a grand jury if they desire to do so.

Frequently, because of the nature of many cases which come up for investigation, women prefer not to sit.

Two grand jurors were excused by the court, three were not present because of illness.

On the petit jury three were not served, two of the panel failed to answer when the roll was called and one juror sent a certificate of illness. Practically half of the remaining jurors sought to be excused and were excused by the court.

At the call of the civil calendar many of the cases were immediately marked over the term and others were set down for later in the term.

Three were announced settled. An action for goods sold and delivered brought by Abe Masors against Jennie Goodman, Lawrence Levine for plaintiff and H. Westlake Coons for defendant. An action brought by Frank Sotille against James Edward McGowan, contract. Flanagan & Kaercher for plaintiff and Michael Moses for defendant. ### Comparison of Policy

Here, in brief, is a comparison of existing policy under the neutrality act with that which the administration has advocated in proposing revision of the neutrality statute:

Exports to Warring Nations
Present—Shipment of arms, ammunition and implements of war (including airplanes) prohibited. Shipments of other goods permitted.

Proposed—Eliminate ban against shipments of arms, ammunition and implements of war. Require that exports of all goods to belligerents be preceded by the transfer of title to the foreign purchaser.

U. S. Shipping
Present—American ships free to go wherever international law permits.

Proposed—Prohibit American ships from entering combat areas.

Travel Restrictions
Present—Americans forbidden to travel on ships of belligerents in North Atlantic area adjacent to Europe. Persons returning to

Borah Heading Opposition Is Already Arranging to Make Radio Address on the Subject

Washington, Sept. 12 (AP).—An historic Senate struggle appears in prospect over President Roosevelt's proposal to repeal the arms embargo provision of the neutrality act—a step which many legislators say would benefit England and France in their war with Germany.

Senator Borah (R., Idaho), another of his Republican colleagues discussed the issue informally yesterday and one of them predicted afterward that the President would have to "fight for everything he gets" if he calls a special session to revise the neutrality act.

Mr. Roosevelt has said he would call such a session between now and January, but he has not yet disclosed when the call would be issued.

Indications were that the opposition to repealing the embargo would lose no time in getting its campaign under way. Borah already is arranging to make a radio address on the subject although the date has not been set.

The Idahoan, senior minority member of the Senate foreign relations committee, served notice that he would insist on full opportunity to debate the issue but added he had no desire to "kill time."

The administration program, he asserted, would "inevitably bring us into war."

Senator Nye (R., N. D.), another of those who attended yesterday's meeting, said he was "greatly heartened" by the strong sentiment he found in favor of retention of the embargo and predicted there would be a "determined fight" to preserve it.

Senator Townsend (D., Del.) commented that there was even more opposition to the administration's neutrality plan than he at first believed. He said he thought President Roosevelt had "aggravated" the situation by his flung an accusation of partisanship at the Senate foreign relations committee members who voted against consideration of his program at the last session.

"He will have to fight for everything he gets," Townsend said.

Approve Name of Savings and Loan Ass'n of Kingston

Approval by the Deputy Superintendent of Banks of the State of New York, Gerald R. Dorman, has been given for the change of name of The Co-operative Savings and Loan Association of this city. A certificate of such approval was filed last week in the office of the Ulster county clerk.

Last June the stockholders voted to change the name of the Association to Savings and Loan Association of Kingston and that change is now approved by the State Banking Department under which jurisdiction all Savings and Loan Associations now are conducted.

Because the majority of Savings and Loan Associations are primarily engaged in financing homes through the direct reduction plan many Associations are dropping the "co-operative" portion of their titles.

The Kingston Co-operative Savings and Loan Association was incorporated on February 6, 1922 with the secretary of state and has since operated under that name. The change voted last June shortens the name to Savings and Loan Association of Kingston. The Association will shortly move from its present offices on Wall street to the new building now under construction by the association on Wall street between the Kingston Savings Bank and the Kingston Club. The new building will be occupied exclusively by the association, and ground floor offices will make it much more convenient for the patrons of the association.

Cornell Hose Meeting
Regular meeting of Cornell Hose Co. will be held this evening at 8 o'clock. All members are requested to be present.

Launch Three-Front Offensive
With the German Army west of Warsaw, Sept. 12 (AP).—German headquarters announced that the German forces this morning launched a three-front offensive which it expected to be the final push to break Polish resistance. The fronts were given as: East of Radom, north of Lodz and northeast of Warsaw.

Government Not Moving
London, Sept. 12 (AP).—The British government announced today it was taking steps to remove 7,000 and 8,000 members of the staffs of governmental departments from London, but stressed that the government itself was not moving from the capital. "There is no question of the government as a whole being evacuated," said a spokesman. "Not a single minister is leaving and none concerned in the wartime activities of the government are being evacuated."

Wedge Into Siegfried Line
Paris, Sept. 12 (AP).—French dispatches tonight reported that French advance guards had driven a wedge into the advance fortifications of Germany's Siegfried Line east of Saarbrücken. One section of the attacking forces was asserted to have "slightly turned" the defenses of the great industrial city. Artillery pounded German lines surrounding the city from heights in the forest of Warndt.

Besiegers Pushed Back
Budapest, Sept. 12 (AP).—Polish army general headquarters asserted today that Warsaw's German besiegers had been pushed back "far into the outskirts of the capital." A communique broadcast from the radio station at Lwow said the nearest German troops now were six miles from the center of the city. It said the push was "developing" with the aid of heavy Polish reinforcements which were rushed to Warsaw from the south. It was reported from Cernauti, Rumania, that 7,000 Polish refugees crossed the frontier there.

Warsaw's Fate
Allied shipping losses approached the 100,000 mark in tonnage today as the British ministry of information, reporting on Germany's unabated submarine warfare, announced the sinking of the British tanker Inverliffe.

The ship, a 9,156-ton vessel built in Hamburg last year and running between the Gulf of Mexico and England, was torpedoed near Havre, France, yesterday. The crew was rescued by the Standard Oil tanker R. G. Stewart, and later transferred to the City of Joliet, bound from New Orleans to Antwerp.

One other casualty was reported today—the blowing up of the 2,795-ton Finnish bark Olivebank about 105 miles southwest of Esbjerg, southwestern Denmark. Fourteen of the crew were killed, and seven saved. The survivors said their ship hit a mine.

The British ministry of information said four British merchant ships had reported unsuccessful attacks by submarines.

Since the war started September 3, Nazi submarines have sunk 17 allied ships with a total tonnage of 96,494. The Germans have lost five ships totaling 12,725 tons and a destroyer sunk by accident. The loss of the Finnish bark brought the total of neutral ships lost to four.

Sixteen of the allied ships destroyed were British, one French. The allied death toll was 136 to at least seven known German dead and an unknown number lost when the Oresund, an old type Nazi destroyer, blew up yesterday after striking a German-laid mine in the Baltic Sea.

Germany reported sweeping advances for her armies in Poland today while a major battle on the western front seemed to be foretold by action of British-French forces.

A German communique said forces closing around Warsaw had crossed a railway due east of the capital.

Another announcement said Poznan and other former German cities of western Poland had been captured, cutting down a huge loop of encircled territory which had held out despite German penetration in further parts of Poland.

The Polish general staff said Germany had been fought to a standstill, at least temporarily. The German supreme army command declared, however, that its airforce had "shut off the eastern outlets of Warsaw" and that its land forces had crossed the Warsaw-Siedlce railway, due east of the capital.

A big battle in Poland west of the Vistula river is nearing its end, with extensive Polish forces surrounded, said a German communique.

A London announcement disclosed for the first time officially that British troops were in action alongside French soldiers on German territory on the western front.

French forces were reported to have maneuvered into position to threaten Saarbrücken, German industrial city between the Maginot and Siegfried lines. German counter-attacks were said to have been thrown back.

A French communique "a calm night along the entire front" indicated they had not followed up their advantage immediately.

Of western front operations, Germany reported only that "there were local skirmishes with vanguards."

Germany's main attention still was focused on Poland, in the hope of cleaning up the eastern campaign before devoting greater force to the west.

Warsaw's fate was being settled by two principal engagements—one at the capital itself and another north of Lodz, 60 miles west of Warsaw.

Germans hoped for the capitulation of Warsaw soon to stiffen German morale for a greater struggle with Britain and France.

Report Submarine Off Nantucket

Officers of British Ship Report Incident Upon Arrival Here

New York, Sept. 12 (AP)—An unidentified submarine was reported operating off Nantucket lightship yesterday, officers of the British ship Arandora Star said today when she arrived from Cherbourg and Southampton with 441 passengers, 260 of them Americans.

Captain Edgar Wallace Moulton, on orders of the British Admiralty, declines to discuss the hazards of the 11-day voyage, but other officers said the ship received warnings nine times that submarines were in its vicinity. The last warning spoke of an undersea boat off Nantucket.

The Arandora Star, a 15,500-ton vessel operated by the Blue Star Line, is a cruise ship chartered by Cunard-White Star to bring refugees back from Europe. She also carried $14,000,000 in gold.

Officers said the ship had no convoy of any kind, and the first naval vessel sighted after the declaration of war was the United States destroyer Goff, about 150 miles from Nantucket.

Two days ago the life rafts were unshipped from the boat deck and placed alongside the railings and lifeboats were made ready.

Blackouts were observed at night and the ship followed a zig-zag course far south of the regular ship lanes. The ship's funnels and superstructure had been painted gray, and the work of covering the ship with a protective coating was continued at sea. The ship's hull was still white when she arrived, but portholes, windows and deck doors were dark blue.

Among the passengers was an Indian prince, the Maharajah Manikya of Tripura, who visited the New York World's Fair early this summer and sailed on the Normandie August 15 with his retinue of 17 persons to go home to India to cool off after New York's terrific heat.

He did not say why he had returned from Europe.

New wartime traffic rules continued to affect North Atlantic shipping of both neutral and belligerent nations.

The British consulate general in New York issued a statement saying the British would be compelled to use their belligerent rights to the full to prevent contraband goods reaching the enemy. So far as is consistent with this determination, neutral nations will find little interference with their bona fide trade, the statement said.

Industrial Stocks Reach New High

Although it continued to be a "war market" as stocks, with the exception of the lagging utilities, forged ahead again Monday, there were numerous items of business news that justified an optimistic view of economic conditions.

With steel leading the advance, industrial stocks, as measured in the Dow-Jones averages, moved into new high ground for 1939, closing at 155.12, up 4.21 points for the day and the best gain since the big rise of 10.03 points on September 5, following the entrance of Great Britain and France into the war. The best previous mark this year was on January 4, when industrials stood at 154.85. Ralls again moved forward, up 79 points for the day, to 31.30. Utilities, which have shown but two advances in the past ten days, again lost ground, being down 19 points to 23.49, as the buying public rushed to secure the more distinctive "war baby" issues.

Volume again was heavy, the total of 4,680,000 shares being the largest since Tuesday last week when 5,334,350 shares changed hands. At the height of the movement the ticker was thrown six minutes behind floor transactions. With the exception of world sugar contracts commodities generally were higher, the Dow-Jones index being up 1.41 points for the day. Silk again rose the day's limit, 15 cents a pound, with September deliveries at $3.02 a pound, highest since June, 1930, when $3.67 a pound was reached. In London rubber was up the equivalent of two cents a pound here. Hides were up around half a cent a pound. Wheat prices fluctuated, but Chicago closed with net gains of up to 1 1/2 cents a bushel. With trade demand good cotton prices resumed their upward trend and futures showed gains up to 29 points. In Worth Street business continued in fair volume, the day's total being estimated at 20,000,000 shares, with prices holding at Friday's highest levels. In Chicago the market showed losses for the fourth consecutive day.

Steel operations this week, under rush of domestic orders, went up 11.6 points over last week, to 70.2 per cent of capacity, highest level since the boom of 1937. There is a rise in foreign inquiries and some orders already have been placed. The question of an increase in prices is in the balance. Many producers believe prices are below a fair level under conditions likely to prevail, on the other hand a political reaction is feared if a price rise is put into effect at this time. U. S. Steel shipments last month totaled 803,822 tons, up 127,510 over July.

The U. S. Maritime Commission has thrown aside its 50-ships-a-month merchant marine program and has asked for bids on 20 cargo vessels of 13,000 tons displacement, to cost about $40,000,000. So far the commission has ordered 93 ships and 19 already have been launched.

Because of world demand for sugar, as a result of the war, extraordinary purchases by consumers and apparent speculative activity, the President issued an order lifting marketing quotas on sugar. Other necessary steps to increase raw materials supplies are a request by the American rubber industry for higher fourth quarter export quotas, and action taken by the Texas Railroad Commission increasing allowances in the East Texas oil field by 110,000 barrels a day, lessening the possibility of a nearby rise in crude oil prices.

A short model year, with earlier changeover and delay on 1940 production due to labor troubles are expected to give General Motors earnings the present quarter substantially below those for previous periods, perhaps net of 25 cents a common share. Fourth quarter prospects are clouded by the foreign sales outlook, although domestic sales are not expected to be lessened.

Rail news includes: Order for 30,000 tons of rails, to cost $1,250,000, by L. & N.; Wheeling & Lake Erie considers purchase of 500 hopper cars; B. & O. recalls 800 and L. & N. 700 maintenance men.

Strike at the Bendix plant is settled and operations resumed. Shipments of brakes and other parts of Packard, Nash and other companies have started. Packard plant resumed operations today.

Gallo Fined $25

Thomas Gallo, Jr., 24, of East Kingston, arrested Saturday on complaint of his wife and charged with assault in the third degree, was fined $25 when arraigned before Justice John Watzka Monday night. Gallo, according to the officer, was inclined to take 25 days in jail instead of producing the cash, but members of his family protested and the fine was paid.

Left the Beans

Kansas City, Sept. 12 (AP)—A left electric cooker going in my room at 4100 Wood avenue. Please have someone turn off electricity under beans. Police can have beans. Officers W. W. Lacy and Edward Laundry turned off the current for Miss Dorothy Meagher, airline hostess, who wired from Wichita, Kas, but left the beans.

New York, Sept. 12 (AP)—Buying in rails and utilities halted a fast retreat of many recent war-bum stocks in today's market.

The list ran into profit taking barriers at the start and, while there were resistant spots, virtually all industrial groups eventually backed away 1 to more than 6 points. The rallying attempt took place after noon, and extreme set-backs were reduced substantially. The ticker tape was behind both on the early tumble and the subsequent come-back. Dealings again slowed near the final hour. Transfers were at the rate of approximately 4,500,000 shares.

Prominent on the revival were Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Chesapeake & Ohio, Consolidated Edison, North American and International Nickel.

Traders apparently were sobered a bit by the lengthy and almost uninterrupted upswing in some pivotal stocks were up 30 to 40 points since the beginning of the European conflict—and discretion prompted many to cash in on the theory a technical reaction was overdue.

A little of the bloom was taken off the bullish trend, some brokers said, on word the proposed amendment of the neutrality law to permit purchases of war materials by belligerents in this country would be fought by several prominent Republicans in the Senate.

Bonds were mixed, with U. S. governments inclined to steady. Securities at Amsterdam gave ground. Commodities were erratic.

Conspicuous shares on the downturn were Bethlehem Steel, U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, du Pont, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, Allied Chemical, N. Y. Dock, International Mercantile Marine, South Porto Rico Sugar, Fajardo Sugar, Standard Oil of N. J. and American Sugar Refining.

Posting minus signs in the curb were Creole Petroleum, Midvale Steel, Sherwin Williams, Todd Shipyard and Singer Mfg.

MAIL FROM HOME FOR FRENCH POILUS

Ulster Chapter, Red Cross Starts Work for War Victims

The Ulster County Chapter, American Red Cross, will at once take up the work of making surgical dressings, hospital garments and the like for the victims of the war now in progress in Europe.

They will also receive contributions, which will be sent to the national headquarters, for impartial distribution in foreign war relief work.

Action toward these ends was taken at a meeting of the executive committee of the Ulster County Chapter held at the court house this morning. Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck, chairman of the organization, presided at the meeting, which was attended by 18 members of the executive committee.

Letters from the national committee were read, authorizing collection of funds for war relief, although apparently no drive, as such, is contemplated for the present. It was emphasized that distribution of funds so collected would be distributed in accord with the traditional policy of impartiality of the Red Cross. In general funds will not be received for transmissions to foreign agencies. Contributors, however, may designate the country to which they wish their gifts applied.

The matter of selecting a place in which the work of making supplies can be carried on was discussed at some length and a committee consisting of Mrs. Frederic Holcomb and Mrs. Myron Teller was named by the chairman to select a suitable room or rooms. The meeting found itself unable to name a chairman for the head of the important production committee. On motion of Mrs. John Snyder of Saugerties, Mrs. Cornelia Hasbrouck and Mrs. Clara Norton Reed of Kingston were named as a committee to select a chairman of the production committee and report their choice to Judge Hasbrouck within three days.

The chairman of the production committee, when chosen, is to act with Mrs. Martinus Downer, Mrs. Cornelia Hasbrouck and Mrs. Thomas E. Hayes, in the capacity of a purchasing committee.

The matter of selecting a chairman of the committee to have charge of packing and shipping the finished goods, when work gets under way, was left with Chairman Hasbrouck, who suggested that he would get in touch with the service clubs of Kingston and ask them to supply a committee to perform that service.

At the opening of the meeting Judge Hasbrouck gave some report on the financial condition of the chapter, disclosing a fund of some $2,200, left from the sale of materials at the conclusion of the World War. The treasury was said to be in a condition to meet any orderly, reasonable expenses, for the present at least, without putting on a drive for money.

It was brought out that when work gets under way necessary equipment will be sewing machines. It was decided to make an appeal for the loan of a number of serviceable machines to be used in the work as soon as a work place is obtained and a force of workers organized.

Present at the meeting this morning was Kazimir Hudala, who stated that he was planning the call of a meeting for tonight at the Polish Church, for the purpose of organizing a relief movement there for the benefit of Polish sufferers. Such an organization may work as an auxiliary of the Ulster County Red Cross, or otherwise. It was suggested to Mr. Hudala that he get in touch with National Red Cross headquarters as to the most desirable course to follow.

The Ladies' Aid Society will hold its regular meeting at the church on Wednesday of this week at 3 o'clock. Important business makes a large attendance desirable.

Pastor Is Guest At Club Meeting

Kingston Lions opened the fall season last evening with their weekly meeting at Governor Clinton Hotel. There was considerable enthusiasm shown, a good attendance was registered and the club started off the fall season with a splendid speaker.

The speaker was the Rev. Maurice Verno, of St. John's Church, who told in most interesting manner of a book which he is writing on the Penobscot Bay country in Maine.

He told something of its historical background, of its scenic and vacation background and spoke of its industries. The Rev. Mr. Verno said that apparently the locality was early recognized as a section of importance and held a great historical value. It was inhabited by early settlers of this country and was used as a base of operations by the British during the early days.

As to its industry, he said, he was represented by the "three P's" (fur, fish and fruit), and that boat building had always been a big industry, and mentioned the fact that over 230 boats were built there between 1790 and 1890. Mr. Verno also referred to a book which he is writing on Ulster county and the Catskills, in which he also makes reference to the epitaphs gathered from tombstones throughout New England. Reference was also made to a novel which Mrs. Verno is writing, taking as her locality and characters the Penobscot country and its people.

The Lions were enthusiastic over the coming softball game with Kewanee on September 21 at Forsyth Park. Since the first game went to Kewanee the Lions are determined to take the second game.

Communist Funds Report Is Given

Dies Committee Is Told Party Took in Almost Half Million

Washington, Sept. 12 (AP)—Robert Weiner, financial secretary of the American Communist Party, told the Dies committee today his party's income was $258,000 in 1937; $191,000 in 1938, and $109,000 in the first six months of 1939.

The largest sources, he said, were "thousands of contributors" and party members paying dues of between 40 and 50 cents monthly.

The House committee, at work in an inquiry into un-American activities, sought to trace all Communist Party income because Ben Gitlow, expelled official of the party, has testified Moscow sent funds here.

Weiner specifically denied under questioning by Rhea Whitley, committee counsel, and Chairman Dies (D-Tex.) the party received such funds from Russia. "If someone brought in money from outside the United States and gave it to me without telling me where it came from, I wouldn't know," he said.

At the opening of today's session a United States marshal served the individual committee members with papers in William Dudley Pelley's damage suit for $500,000 against each member. Pelley is head of the Silver Shirts, an organization the committee has been looking into. Dies laughed heartily as the marshal distributed the papers.

Pershing, 79 Tomorrow Keeps Up On War News

General Pershing as he arrived in France in September, 1918, on his way to a First Division ceremony.

By ALEXANDER E. GEORGE
AP Feature Service Writer

Washington—The last survivor of the military chieftains of the World War enters his 80th year tomorrow, September 13, with his attention alertly focused on the present European conflict.

General John J. Pershing will spend his 79th birthday in an army hospital here for a periodical check-up.

The travels of the frail but still soldierly figure of the A. E. F. commander are limited to a short daily walk between rest periods spent in bed and an easy chair.

Follows the New Battles

His mind, however, leaps 3,000 miles to the Western front where exactly 21 years ago he directed the doughboys in those sweeping drives of the Allies that smashed the Hindenburg line. He follows the war news closely, morning and afternoon, but keeps his views to himself.

Col. George E. Adamson, his personal aide since before the World War, says the general has refrained from public comment because of his semi-official position. Although he has been retired from active service since 1924, as "general of the armies of the United States," he has the highest ranking ever given an American soldier.

His sole recent utterance on the situation was a terse "They're ready in France," made upon his return from that country about two weeks before hostilities broke out.

Assounded Doctors
France's Foch and Joffre, Britain's Haig and Beatty, and Germany's Hindenburg and Ludendorff rest in soldiers' tombs. But "Black Jack" Pershing, who went to death's door 19 months ago, assounded doctors by refusing to give up the fight against a critical heart and kidney condition.

At times now he becomes quite tired, yet he scorns reports, he is an invalid.

"Me ill? It's ridiculous!" he asserts.

Another Trip To France

General Pershing's greatest interest lately has been supervising the erection of American monuments on World War battle-grounds.

He looks forward to another trip to France, although the war makes that seem a forlorn hope.

Meanwhile, all of the army except Pershing have retreated from their ancient quarters in the State, War and Navy building to the Munitions building.

A Famous Office

His office is a beautiful old baronial room that was the office of Franklin D. Roosevelt when he was assistant secretary of the navy, and was used by President Hoover when the White House offices were damaged by fire.

General Pershing is planning to return soon to that office, where memories of the first World War will come flooding back on the tide of news of the second.

Man's Death Being Probed By Greene County Officials

State police and District Attorney John C. Welch of Catskill on Monday investigated the death of Kenneth Churchill, 35, who died about 3 o'clock that morning, following, it is reported, a fight in a garage of John A. Carman in Prattsville.

According to the report made to the district attorney Churchill, a man named Marvin Rion, had a quarrel in the garage Sunday afternoon in which Churchill suffered a fall and struck his head on the concrete floor.

Churchill, unable to arise, was attended by Dr. Sutton and later removed to his home where he died.

Retires as O. & W. Conductor After 47 Years

After 47 years of service with the New York, Ontario & Western railroad, and now the oldest man on his division, Emmett R. Johnston of Walton has retired. Born in Hamden 71 years ago, Mr. Johnston started with the O. & W. as a brakeman in days when that was mighty dangerous work, as brakes had to be set on top of cars in all kinds of weather. He worked his way up to the position of conductor and during his earlier assignments was in charge of a work train where hours ranged from 12 to 24 a day. During his last two and a half years he had charge of the long milk run from Sidney to Middletown.

Poles Claim Stalemate In Fifth Day of Siege

By LLOYD LEBRAS

Budapest, Sept. 12 (AP)—The Polish general staff's communique No. 11, broadcast today, declared stout resistance had brought the German plane, tank and artillery attacks at least to a temporary stalemate throughout a wide-spread battle zone.

The communique announced severe fighting was continuing along the Bug river without major change, with the Germans throwing vast numbers of tanks into the struggle.

(The Bug river flows from east to west, joining the Narew at a point 20 miles due north of Warsaw.)

The official Hungarian news agency said the Polish radio station at Lublin announced decrees for the purchase of food for civilians fleeing from battle zones.

The radio station at Lwow (Lemberg), capital of the Polish Ukraine, reported volunteers were digging trenches and air raid shelters and preparing to defend the city. (Lublin is 95 miles southeast of Warsaw, about halfway to Lwow.)

The Germans were reported continuing their attacks in the Modlin sector without gains.

(Modlin is at the juncture of the Narew and Vistula rivers, 20 miles northwest of Warsaw.)

German attacks were reported continuing along the San river.

German mechanized units were reported moving eastward in the Kutno sector, with the German air force continuing to bombard communication lines.

(Kutno is 70 miles west of Warsaw.)

The general staff communique reported Warsaw's defenders had won a brief breathing spell by forcing the enemy to withdraw from several sectors in the outskirts of the city.

Musical Notes

Eleven tinkling notes, the opening bars of Chopin's "Polonaise," that were sounded every 30 seconds by a xylophone in the Warsaw radio station, let Europe know Poland's capital still was Polish even after the station had shut down early this morning.

Those same musical notes sounded sweet to us before we left Warsaw. As long as they tinkled, we knew all was well, and Warsaw slept to the tune as to a nursery lullaby.

The screech of air alarms at down, drowning out the melody, served as the city's alarm clock.

The melody frequently was interrupted during the day by announcements or code signals that German planes had been spotted near other cities or were proceeding in certain compass directions. These served as advance warnings for other localities.

Night after night we, with thousands of others, sat in the dark with our ears tuned to the radio for the only information on what was happening. If we turned to other stations besides Warsaw, we heard Daventry (England) broadcasting on short wave or German stations, which provided the only news of the outside world.

Carrying on gallantly, many men and women continued the evening custom of gathering in coffee houses along the Nowy-swiat to sip a cup, discuss the war and listen to the radio. But with coffee supplies diminishing, that common meeting place was fading from the picture when I left.

In an early morning broadcast, Polish troops were said by the Warsaw radio announcer today to have stopped invading German forces "dead in their tracks" and forced them to retreat from the beleaguered Polish capital.

The announcer hailed the German withdrawal as the turning point for Poland. He said the Polish army, making Warsaw the symbolic key point of its defense, had established itself in prepared positions on the east bank of the river.

GERMAN WOUNDED SENT BACK TO BERLIN

NEEDLESS FLAG-PLANTING

At the Charlestown Navy Yard, near Boston, preparations for Admiral Byrd's trip to the Antarctic continue undisturbed by war in Europe. He hopes the expedition will be under way by the middle of October.

This will be Byrd's third trip to the South Polar continent, but it differs from the first two in one important respect. It is sponsored by the United States government for the purpose of making official claim to territory there. There was enough sentiment for such claims to win congressional support for the expedition, but many Americans remain unconvinced that we need Antarctic territory or that it is wise to enter an international race for grabbing bits of that frozen land. There are already serious disputes over other claims.

If it is going to be possible within the next few decades to take out and use profitably the natural resources of the Antarctic—and doubtless many people believe it is—it will be unfortunate to have it done to the exclusive advantage of a few nations. This would simply extend to a hitherto undeveloped area the same provocative rivalry between "have" and "have-not" peoples that has already caused so much trouble to the human race.

Here is a magnificent chance for civilized governments to work out a cooperative and peaceful plan for sharing justly whatever wealth the Antarctic holds.

WOMEN JURORS

Women are sitting on juries in Cook County, Illinois, this term for the first time in court history. Women jurors are an old story in many states, but they are still a novelty in others. Judges and court attaches in Chicago were said to be surprised at the large number of women who appeared, the eagerness they showed to serve, and the competent way in which they went to work on their first trials. Only seven of the first 118 who reported in the Criminal Courts Building in response to a jury call asked to be excused from service.

When the 19th Amendment to the Constitution gave equal suffrage to women it did not automatically give them full responsibility in local government and civic affairs. States and communities had to grant them these additional "rights", and there seems to have been no great haste to do so.

It is generally recognized now, however, that it is a good thing to have all citizens—men and women—share in civic tasks. Women's participation in government did not effect the wholesale changes and reforms anticipated by some ardent suffragists, but it has contributed toward a growing understanding of community and governmental problems which is good for all concerned.

POLISH PARTITION

The war map now suggests another "partition of Poland." Hitler's troops seem to have seized already nearly all the Polish territory held by Germany before the World War, and will doubtless do their best to keep it from now on.

Some observers suggest that the Nazis may push on eastward to conquer the whole country. But there they would probably get into difficulty with Russia.

It is quite possible that Russia wants the eastern half or two-thirds of Poland, which she held before the last war. Reports of Russian troops being mobilized on the eastern Polish border certainly suggest that. A new Polish partition, abolishing Poland again as a self-governing country, may have been planned as a secret part of the recent German-Russian treaty.

If Soviet Russia proceeds to "rectify her border" in that way, she may be inclined to make a complete job of it, and take back the fringe of little countries north of Poland on the Baltic Sea, Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia, formerly a part of the czarist empire. That would be another blow to the democracies.

EMPLOYMENT'S FUTURE

Factory jobs for men in Ohio increased 63 per cent in August over the July employment figure. The net gain in all types of employment was 8 per cent over July of this year and 65 per cent over August, 1938.

Some of the rise is attributed to the demand for war goods that arose in the last few days of August, but much of it represents the beginning of the expected fall pick-up in business generally. This development is reflected in WPA reports, which show five or six men leaving WPA for jobs in private industry to one losing such a job and seeking WPA employment.

Employment has been, and will remain, one of this country's most important concerns. If war in Europe creates an industrial boom which ends unemployment temporarily, neither private citizens nor government should forget the basic problem of so ordering our economic and industrial system that unemployment on a gigantic scale can not disrupt our national life and threaten our democracy.

CLOTHING STILL CHEAP

A review of the retail market situation at the end of last week showed no general increase in the price of shoes and clothing. And this in spite of rising prices in hides and wool.

Dealers explained that autumn buying was mostly done before the recent rise in materials started. Thus, they say, "subsequent retail price increases may not be necessary until after Christmas." And they might not come then, because that is the usual time for bargain sales.

From these facts, it looks as if people who have money to spend and think they have to spend it immediately just because there is a war in Europe, might well stop hoarding food and buy what clothes they need.

It would be as foolish, though, to hoard clothes as it is to hoard foodstuffs, for then clothing prices, too, would shoot up prematurely. And of course some of the surplus clothing bought now would be out of style before the hoarders got much use out of it.

Sign of the times: Abe Pickus, a Cleveland manufacturer whose sideline is acting as voluntary adviser to heads of governments, has given up the totalitarianism as a hopeless job and advises America to arm.

At this stage of the political war, anyway, Americans are more or less neutral.

 DEATH RATE IN APPENDICITIS

Eight years ago, Dr. R. M. Watkins, Cleveland, reviewed the records of 1,000 cases of acute suppurative (pus-forming) appendicitis, acute, simple, and chronic appendicitis (without pus) in adults, as they occurred in the Woman's Hospital. The death rate in the different types combined was 9 per cent. This present year Dr. Watkins and Dr. F. R. Kelly review the next 1,000 of these cases. Naturally, with all the information that has been made known to the public, one would expect to find that the death rate of the second 1,000 deaths would be lower.

What did these investigators find? In an article in the Journal of the American Medical Association they state that the death rate in the second 1,000 cases was 23 per cent.

This same finding—increased death rate—is reported by two other investigators, Drs. E. P. Quinn and R. H. Waldschmidt, who reported a death rate of 10 per cent in a series of 1,000 cases between 1919 and 1927 and a death rate of about 19 per cent in a series of cases after 1928.

Why should death rate in appendicitis double or more than double itself during the past ten years? It is certainly not because the public or the medical profession is not aware of the signs, symptoms, and dangers of appendicitis, as we remember the educational campaigns carried on in Philadelphia and elsewhere.

In the opinion of these physicians, the increased death rate is due to delay in operation, and this delay is because (a) the patient or his family fear the cost of operation, (b) the tendency to use home remedies including purgatives, and (c) complications which may cause the physician to postpone operation.

To reduce the death rate in appendicitis in adults, Drs. Watkins and Kelly state that whether or not the individual has the money to pay for the operation, operation should be performed. Patients and families should be told that surgeons in every hospital will operate on appendicitis cases to save life regardless of whether the patient can pay for same.

In the meantime, persons should be told to pocket their pride and seek medical aid regardless of their circumstances if they have pain in the abdomen.

HIGHLAND NEWS

Parade of Gowns
 Highland, Sept. 11.—The Parade of Gowns of Then and Now was successfully presented Wednesday evening in the Presbyterian Church hall.

Miss Nancy Rathgeb entered wearing a flounced dress with hoopskirts and a bonnet that had flowers tucked in above the hair. This was of the 1860 date. Mrs. Kenneth Church followed in ashes of roses taffeta, a wedding gown of 1872. With this she wore a lace and ribbon cap and black lace scarf. Miss Dorene Busch in a very bouffant dark blue taffeta and light fitting basque. This of 1887 and had been the wedding dress of Miss Elmore Wilkew when she married Clark Champ-lin.

There was a small black bonnet and mink collar and stole and small mink of Miss Eliza Raymond's grandmother. Miss Doris Coutant modeled the wedding dress of the mother of Mrs. Harry Colyer. This of white wool with shirring and ribbon bows. This wedding had taken place in the then little town of Leadville, Colo., in 1889. She was followed by Miss Ruth Haynes in a grey summer dress and lace shawl worn by Miss Emily Martin. She carried a tiny parasol and belonged to the 1890 period. A heavy black faille with train, a tiny parasol and small bonnet was worn by Miss Lois Welker. This was loaned by Mrs.

Fred Lewis Vail, it having come from Paris and belonged to her sister.

Mrs. Elmer Randall wore a black taffeta skirt, sheer waist, black dolman and hat. Miss Eliza Raymond represented the Gibson girl of 1898 with a full length skirt and shirt waist, high collar and tie and sailor hat, with the long handled parasol. Mrs. Alfred Lane in an elaborate gown of 1907 of brown satin, large hat with plumes worn by Mrs. Vail. Miss Shirley Hubbard and Fred Randall entered together. Miss Hubbard in white and Fred wearing the suit of Charles Champlin when he was a student at River-view Military Academy in Poughkeepsie. Miss Rose Symes in a pretty party gown of 1913 period was followed by Mrs. Matthew Busch in the white satin wedding gown of Mrs. George W. Pratt. This included gloves, veil, orange blossoms and prayer book. Little Audrey Burke carried the train and wore the ice blue satin dress worn by Rosalie Haviland at the wedding of Miss Josephine Pratt to James Lumb last year. Mrs. Lane and Mrs. Randall again modeled in dresses of the 1913 date and accompanied Mrs. Busch, the former wearing a silk and lace dress worn at the wedding of her brother. This included a large hat. Mrs. Randall in yellow marquisette with black satin trimmings and hat belonging to Mrs. Vail. The gown having been worn by Miss Raymond.

Miss Doris Coutant wore her mother's wedding dress of white lace and her brother, Robert Coutant, took the part of bridegroom, wearing an old fashioned coat with high collar. They were accompanied by Miss Emily Lent in a blue satin evening gown of her mother's, and Miss Shirley Hubbard wearing a white dotted swiss belonging to Mrs. D. S. Haynes. A third wedding dress of grey chiffon with pleated cape had been worn by Miss Ellen Squiers in 1924 when she was married to Clarence W. Rathgeb. This was modeled by Miss Joyce Boyce.

Miss Frances Simpson in the ivory satin wedding gown of Mrs. LeGrand Haviland, Jr., with the long train carried by little Marilyn Burke wearing a blue moire that she had just worn at a wedding. The part of bridegroom was taken by Richard Corwin in a Prince Albert coat and high collar. With them was grouped Nancy Rathgeb in a yellow flowered taffeta which Mrs. Clarence Tompkins had worn at Miss Rowena Pratt's wedding when she became Mrs. Haviland. Mrs. A. W. Lott in yellow chiffon, worn at the same wedding, and Miss Viola Wood in burnt orange chiffon with deep bertha. Paris made formed the group. The latter gown belonged to Mrs. Elmer Randall. Miss Lois Welker appeared in a pale blue, long trained gown from Paris with this was a lace, flower trimmed hat and white feather boa, belonging to Mrs. Vail. Mrs. W. E. Taber modeled her black lace evening gown worn at a reception accorded a foreign ambassador in 1932. With this she wore a heavily embroidered shawl. Misses Nancy Dean and Barbara Lent modeled their evening gowns.

The music during the parade was by Mrs. Willard Burke at the piano and the selections corresponded to the period of the gowns, with the wedding marches used when wedding gowns were worn. Miss Rose Symes sang "An Alice Blue Gown," and at another point in the program Mrs. William Lais sang "O Promise Me." Mrs. Betty Schorweide arranged the settings and read some account of the gown as the wearer entered. The finale brought each actor in a review before the large audience. Mrs. D. S. Haynes was chairman of the committee.

German Propaganda Seeks to Create as Much Dissension as Possible Inside the United States

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Sept. 12.—There's only one sentiment common to all sides in the controversy over revising America's so-called neutrality law, and that is a desire to keep the United States from becoming involved.

Already the dispute has reached proportions eminently satisfactory to the German government, whose propaganda is seeking to create as much dissension as possible inside the United States.

There is every evidence that the discussion will be intensified in the special session of Congress about to be called. Each side will attempt to place upon the other the responsibility for endeavoring to drag America into the war. The issues can be thus simplified: 1. If the neutrality law is repealed and all belligerents are treated alike so that they can come and get their war materials provided they pay cash, will this bring America into the war? The opponents say it will because it is necessary to avoid attack by Germany on any American cargoes, no matter by whom carried. Those who favor repeal of the war supplies embargo say that, by passing the Hull plan, America asserts her right to sell but each country must come and get the materials and there is no chance to involve America in war.

2. If the neutrality law is not repealed and Great Britain and France are defeated in the present war, will the United States be compelled to fight either in the current conflict or subsequently against a German empire which has swallowed the British navy? A substantial factor in American defense against potential invasions from Europe? The advocates of repeal say, in effect, America either must build armament of back-breaking expense now for self-defense and ultimately get into war against Hitlerism anyhow, or else save herself an expensive war by helping the allies win with supplies bought from America for cash and conveyed to them in their own ships.

The arguments are difficult to follow at times, on both sides, because, at the moment, everything except airplanes can be shipped to the belligerents in American vessels, and, if it is assumed that the mere transportation of cargoes may get us into war, then America at the moment faces such a peril in refusing to amend the neutrality laws so as to keep the cargoes of contraband off American vessels.

The question has become, unfortunately, one of whether the allies or the Germans should be helped by American "neutrality." This situation was produced by the action of the American congress in departing from the established principles of international law which, heretofore, have sanctioned neutral trade with any belligerent, but subject to search and seizure of contraband cargoes at the shipper's risk of running a formal blockade.

There is no denying the fact that, just as the statute imposing the war supplies embargo in the first place was an encouragement to Germany and an aid to her in war time, so also the removal of the embargo now becomes a distinct encouragement and aid to the British and France in war time.

Some members of Congress say it is a matter of indifference to them what happens in Europe. Many members of the British and French Parliaments in the last six years were indifferent to what Germany was doing, but today Great Britain and France are at war because Hitler believed they would never fight for a principle—the independence of small states. In 1916, moreover, the policy of the Democratic party—bottling up the war achievement—was interpreted in Berlin as an indication that America was pacifistically inclined and would not go to war. Shortly after the national election, in which peace was the issue, the German high naval command issued its orders to destroy all shipping in and around the European coasts, irrespective of the nationality of the ships or the cargoes hauled. To this day, the records show that Canada, an area of Presidential Wilson in 1916 was misinterpreted in Berlin and had a decisive effect on German policy.

If the Congress of the United States should decide to continue to refuse to supply airplanes to Great Britain and France, it will be notification to Germany, on the one hand, that America does not care about the outcome, and it will produce, on the other, throughout the English-speaking world, including Canada, an era of ill-will which has never existed between America and the British Dominions.

Under such circumstances, the return to international law, with its established customs, is the course advocated by many international law experts, irrespective of party.

HUDSON RIVER STEAMBOATS

These articles are written from the collection of George W. Murdock, veteran marine engineer.

No. 107—Highlander

Almost from the day she slid down the ways into the water the "Highlander" was a part of the contests between steamboats for the honor of being the fastest and most efficient vessel on a particular route on the river. Later, after her days as a passenger vessel gave way to the era of the modern craft, the "Highlander" was converted into a towboat and continued her useful career on the river.

The "Half Moon" sailed centuries before in quest of a route to India. The wooden hull of the "Highlander" was constructed at New York in the year 1835 by Lawrence and Sneden. The length of her keel was 160 feet, with an over-all length of 175 feet, and her beam measured 24 feet wide, her hold eight feet deep. Her engine was the product of the West Point Foundry, being of the vertical beam type with a 10-foot stroke.

Two iron boilers were placed on her guards, and her paddle wheels were 24 feet in diameter with buckets 10 feet long and a dip of 29 inches. She was rated at 313 tons.

The "Highlander" was built for Thomas Powell, Samuel Johnson, and Robert Wordrop, for use on the Hudson river, and she was one of the finest and fastest steamboats of that period. While the "Highlander" was under construction at New York, another steamboat, the "James Madison", was being built at Philadelphia, to run in opposition to the "Highlander" on the Newburgh and New York route. The ensuing contests between these two vessels were frequent, and both steamboats claimed a share of the honors. The pages of Hudson river steamboat history are marred considerably by the disasters caused by contests between steamboats when overtaxed boilers exploded or fire swept vessels from stem to stern, but these records fail to shed light on any accidents that resulted from the rivalry of the "Highlander" and the "James Madison."

The "James Madison" was finally placed in service between Albany and New York and her name changed to the "Onondaga"—thus bringing to an end the contests with the "Highlander."

The "Highlander" continued operating on the Newburgh and New York route until 1846 when the steamboat "Thomas Powell," a new and faster vessel, met her appearance. She was never seen in service as an excursion steamboat, and later she appeared on the Rondout and New York route, as a passenger vessel.

In 1851 Thomas Cornell purchased the "Onondaga" and changed her name back to the "James Madison," and during this period both the "Highlander" and the "James Madison" were converted into towboats.

In 1852 the "Highlander" was towed out of the "James Madison" to New York—the "James Madison" in the service of the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company and the "Highlander" for the Pennsylvania Dock Company from the Port Ewen docks.

Following the season of 1852 the "Highlander" was taken to the Delaware river where she was used as a towboat until 1866 when she was dismantled and her engine installed in a new towboat, the "William H. Aspinwall."

Olympian Club Announces Program

Olympian Club opened its 1939-40 season last evening with the annual picnic supper at the summer camp of Miss Frieda Hayes at Lake Katrine. The study club for this year will be "Outstanding World Characters." The club has a full membership of 20 this year and 18 attended the opening meeting. The first world characters to be considered were two great religious leaders, St. Francis of Assisi and Toyohiko Kagawa. A paper on the first was read by Miss A. M. Decker and on the latter by Miss Hayes. The program throughout the year has been divided into the series of world leaders. This year the meetings are limited to three papers for an evening and in many cases only two papers will be given. Among the world characters to be studied will be statesmen, musicians, industrial leaders, leaders in social progress, scientists, inventors, naturalists, heroes, artists, sculptors, journalists, dramatists, actors, novelists and poets. The meetings will continue every second week until May 6. The next meeting of the club will be held September 25, for the study of statesmen. The hostess will be Miss Lucy Healy.

A.," with Mrs. Myron Teller as the leader and "The Board of Directors of the Y. W. C. A.," with Mrs. C. H. Treadwell as leader. The committee in charge of the picnic supper consisted of Mrs. M. Donald Lane, chairman, Mrs. Leonard Flicker, Mrs. Doris Monroe and Mrs. William E. Finch.

Good Taste Today

by Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "The Personal Hygiene of a House," "The Blue Book of Social Usage," etc.)

Man and Girl in Public

Dear Mrs. Post: (a) When a girl is dining in a crowded restaurant with a man and friends of his (or hers) or friends of both come in and stop at the table to speak, whose place is it to invite the new arrivals to join them at their table, which happens to be large enough for four? (b) When a girl is dining with a man and she wants to ask the waiter for more water, or for more of whatever it might be, does she ask the waiter herself or let the man and let him ask the waiter?

Answer: (a) The girl. (b) She asks the waiter.

Good Chance to Correct a Mistake

Dear Mrs. Post: Mother has for twenty years been a widow and for twenty years she has called herself Mrs. Mary Smith. We now have your book and learned in it that a widow's name should appear on her daughter's wedding announcements as Mrs. John Smith. Don't you think it is too late for mother to change back to father's name?

Answer: Since "Mrs. Mary" is really not good form, and names to be engraved should be formally correct, your mother's name should be engraved Mrs. John Smith even if she does not mind being "Mrs. Mary" again afterwards. Change of an informal name to one that is formally correct is always made whenever a name is to be engraved. A bride who has never been called anything but Daisy becomes Margaret, or Bud is changed to Charles.

Marrying the Same Man Twice

Dear Mrs. Post: Soon I shall remarry my husband whom I divorced ten years ago. He would like to have me wear my original wedding dress. It is white and I wore it the first time with a bridal veil. Would it be proper to wear the veil again since I am marrying the same man? And what about the flowers?

Answer: No, you may not wear the veil. That wouldn't do at all. But there is no objection to your wearing the same dress. You could wear a diadem or any other ornamental headdress. Or, this is the exceptional occasion when you could wear colored flowers. Otherwise, if you wear a hat you will probably have to cut off some of the train. You may wear any kind of flowers—except orange blossoms. Gardenias are very popular or as I have already said, colored flowers would be suitable for one who has been married before.

A Man's Evening Tie

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it ever proper to wear a white tie with a tuxedo?

Answer: Never! White waistcoat, yes, often—white tie, no! (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Mrs. Post regrets she can no longer answer reader's letters personally, but she will be glad to send you her leaflet, "Answers to 25 Questions Asked in 'An Etiquette Test'." Know Etiquette When Starting Out Socially

Avoid Bad First Impressions

His first call—but what an etiquette blunder she makes, showing she doesn't really belong at his set.

Well-bred girls don't play butler for men by putting their hats and coats away for them. Instead they show men callers where to put their things.

For the girl with background knows that in polite circles the girls are waited on by the men. So she lets her caller open doors for her. If she wishes a chair moved, she asks him to do it, instead of tugging away herself.

Your first formal party is a manners test, too. At the big football dance of the year, make a good impression! Greet the head of the receiving line with "Good evening, Mrs. Armstrong." Introduce yourself if necessary, saying "I am Mary Jones," then introduce your escort.

Remember you present a man to a woman, saying her name first, and when introducing a very young man to older people don't say "Mr. Smith" but "Edward Smith."

Develop grown-up poise, be at ease everywhere. Our 32-page booklet gives etiquette for men and girls at dances, hotels, moving, when motoring, entertaining, dating, visiting. Tells what to do about petting.

Five Additional Clinics Announced

In his endeavor to bring about the protection of all children in Kingston against diphtheria and smallpox, Dr. L. E. Sanford, health officer, has again arranged a series of free clinics to be held in various sections of the city during the fall months.

These clinics will be in addition to the regular weekly clinic held at the city hall each Tuesday afternoon from 3 to 4 o'clock.

"Now that the schools have opened, children are being brought into closer contact in larger numbers and sooner or later communicable diseases are sure to appear," said Dr. Sanford today.

He said that diphtheria and smallpox are two diseases which can be definitely prevented, and all children should be protected against these diseases as soon as possible after reaching the age of six months.

At the present time, Dr. Sanford said, that 54 per cent of children under five years of age in Kingston have been immunized against diphtheria. "It is our earnest endeavor," said the health officer, "to increase this number, and for that reason the additional clinics have been arranged."

By holding these free clinics in various sections of the city it makes it easier for parents to attend with their children.

The five additional clinics and the dates on which they will be held, are:

September 28, at Excelsior Hose

Company house on Hurley avenue, between 3 and 4 o'clock.

October 5, Cordis' Hose on Delaware avenue, at the same hours.

October 19, Twaalfskill Hose house on Wilbur avenue, at same hours.

October 26, Rapid Hose on Hone street, at same hours.

November 3, at Hobby House on Mill street, at same hours.

After A Man's Heart

by JEAN RANDALL

YESTERDAY: Atkins, the dishonest foreman who rented the Carroll's ranch for September, has rented it again for October. The new arrivals are Mr. and Mrs. Hunt, and daughter Maudie May, whose appetite knows no bounds.

Chapter Eight The Siege

ALONE in the dining room, Tim and Buff were joined by Mrs. Webb.

"Should I take her up some soda?" asked the anxious cook. "Or maybe we'd best get Dr. Westland out right away." She added the exclamation she employed only in times of crisis. "My goodness, she's a real one!"

Tim mopped his forehead. "I shall burst myself, just thinking about it."

"Oh, don't!" Buff pleaded. "I feel absolutely suffocated. Still, her parents didn't seem alarmed. And she hasn't put on all that poundage nibbling away on a lamb chop and pineapple diet. Tim, I'm sorry to leave you alone, but I've got to get some exercise—at once! I shall take a long tramp—climb Adulbon and Long's and Pike's, perhaps."

He caught her arm. "No, you don't! I can get about pretty well on these infernal crutches, and I'm not going to be left alone here with that—that anaconda. It might occur to her to come down for a mid-afternoon snack. Take me along, Buff, of your charity. Mrs. Webb."

The cook had sunk into a chair and was staring at the table. "I wouldn't a-believed it if I hadn't seen it with my own eyes! Four chickens, and a good size they was, too!—besides all them vegetables and things. You sure ain't going to make money off these boards, Miss Buff!"

"No," the girl assented. "I sure ain't! Webby, about supper now—I hope you heard me say supper!"

Webby nodded, her eyes glazing as she made a mental inventory of the food consumed. "I ain't no murderer, Miss Buff."

The Hunts were still in possession when Buff and Tim returned late in the afternoon. Mrs. Webb reported that there had been several calls for Tim from Boulder. He called himself to the telephone and came away, looking troubled.

"We can do nothing about it this afternoon, Buff. Worse than that, it looks as if Hunt has a real case, if you try to put him out. He rented the ranch in good faith, as he says, from a man who was, to all intents and purposes, your father's legally constituted agent. Johnson says."

Johnson was the name of the lawyer—that it will be a couple of weeks before you can get rid of them—if you can at all. However, he came closer and sank his voice. "There are more ways to kill a cat than by choking it with butter! If the table you set falls to satisfy Maudie May."

Mischief danced across her face. "I get you!" She flashed out of the room and into the kitchen.

When the strangely assorted family assembled for the final meal of the day, Maudie May looked about her in pained surprise. There was a bowl of blue milk at each plate; crackers—and none too many of them—in a bowl on the table. Nothing else.

"Where's the soup?" she demanded. "I never heard of starting dinner with crackers and milk."

"No more food?"

BUFF explained pleasantly. "We dined at noon. We're simple ranch folk, you know, and keep to country ways."

Maudie tipped her bowl and swallowed the last drop.

"I hope there's plenty to make up for this silly start."

"Have you all finished?" Buff was urbane. "Then shall we go into the living room?"

"But—but—" Maudie May's eyes were popping. "We haven't had dinner—supper yet!"

"Oh, yes! I thought you understood. We have our big meal in the middle of the day, as I told you. Just a snack at night."

"No more food?" The Hunts were plainly incredulous. "But this is outrageous! Maudie May's hungry. My father announced as one explaining that his child had been on a forced starvation diet for days. 'But he'll die if she doesn't have solid food!'"

"I'm sorry! I thought this morning you wouldn't like staying here, Mr. Corliss," went on Buff primly. "has a bad case of dyspepsia!"—she refused to see his start of angry surprise—"and Dr. Westland prefers that he have a light meal at night. I have to watch my own diet, too, so that's all right. I've a tendency to stoutness," said Buff.

"Buff was as slim as one of the aspen trees now shaking its golden leaves outside the window. She led the way into the living room, and the Hunts trailed disconsolately behind her."

"There, pretty, there! I've just remembered!" Mrs. Hunt lumbered awkwardly to her feet. "There's almost half that box of chocolates left. I'll go up and—" She stopped, sending a suspicious look about the room. "Perhaps you'd better come upstairs with me," she finished.

At bedtime Buff was conscious of the pangs of hunger. Dinner had gone practically uneaten, supper had been one cracker and the bowl of bluish milk. Her healthy young body cried out for sustenance. She put on her bathrobe and soft-soled slippers; crept down to the kitchen. A light burned there.

"I thought you'd be down," Tim assured her. "Webby, bless her, apparently thought so, too. Look—"

He pointed proudly to the kitchen table. A large frosted cake glistened; half a baked ham was yielding up its savoriness under his sharp knife. A glass pitcher of milk showed blobs of cream.

"Fall to!" he bade her. They ate in companionable silence.

Departure

THE siege lasted but two days. Tim, after another talk with his friend Johnson, convinced Buff that it was far better to make the ranch an uncomfortable abiding place for the resolute Hunts, than to resort to law in the matter.

"It's not important enough for that," he argued. "And what is more, I think Hunt is staying more out of sheer obstinacy than because he wants the place. Let me manage this for you, Buff, and we'll see their retreating backs in a day or two."

With Mrs. Webb he struggled for a couple of meals, then finding that her outraged soul could not be brought to setting the kind of table he ordered, he informed her she had a bad case of lumbago and must stay in bed until further notice.

The force turned into abrupt tragedy as far as meals were concerned. Whatever else Buff had picked up in the course of her nomadic life with her parents, a knowledge of cookery was not included. She struggled with grim convincingness, the kitchen, burning, under-cooking, producing biscuits that would have made Webby actually ill if Tim had not prudently hidden what was left of them.

"This," announced Mr. Hunt the second day, "is unbearable." He flung his napkin down and glared at his plate. On it reposed a bit of tough and scorched beefsteak; a potato which had baked so long it was shriveled within its skin; green beans which were dry and flavorless. "If this Webb woman is actually sick, why don't you get another cook?"

"It's really Miss Carroll's affair, isn't it?" Tim said gently. "We can hardly advise her about her own household."

"It's a plot to drive us away!" Hunt snorted. "Well, it won't succeed, of that you may be sure. I've paid for a month's board and room here and a month I shall have."

"I really am sorry about dinner, Mr. Hunt," Buff nursed a burn on her wrist the while she gazed with genuine shame at the ill-cooked food. "I tried my very best! Mrs. Webb said even I could bake potatoes, but it seems not."

Maudie May settled the question. "You make her give you money back, Pa, and we'll leave this afternoon. I'm hungry!" Tears came into her small green eyes. "I haven't had a decent thing to eat since that first meal. Are you going to let us all starve to death just for the principle of the thing? I don't care a hoot about principles, but I do care about my stomach. Make her give you back all the money," she added. "We haven't had ten cents' worth of decent food since the cook got sick."

An hour later Maudie May came downstairs ahead of her parents. Buff and Tim sat in silence in the living room, Tim openly triumphant, Buff struggling with an attack of conscience. Still, she had given Mr. Hunt a check covering the entire amount he had paid Atkins!

Maudie May, well fed, was one person; deprived of appetizing food for two days, she was another. It was her stomach rather than her heart which prompted her now.

"I know who you are," she said directly and simply to Tim. "You're the man that Iris DeMuth made a fool of. You used all your money and your partner's to buy up a lot of good-for-nothing land that sold for nothing but a few cents a silver mine. You were engaged to her, and all the time she was playing around with somebody else. The papers were full of it. If I was Miss Carroll I'd sure watch my step with you!"

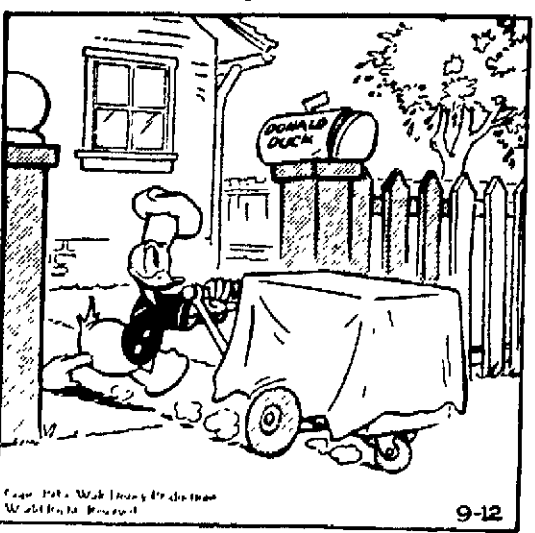

She wadded to the door, paused to sniff at the door, paused to sniff at the door, paused to sniff at the door. "You have a nerve to try to keep on in business right in Boulder after what happened! As if any company would trust you now!"

"Ready, Maudie May? Car's at the door. Goodbye, Miss Carroll. I shall see to it that this little transaction gets plenty of publicity."

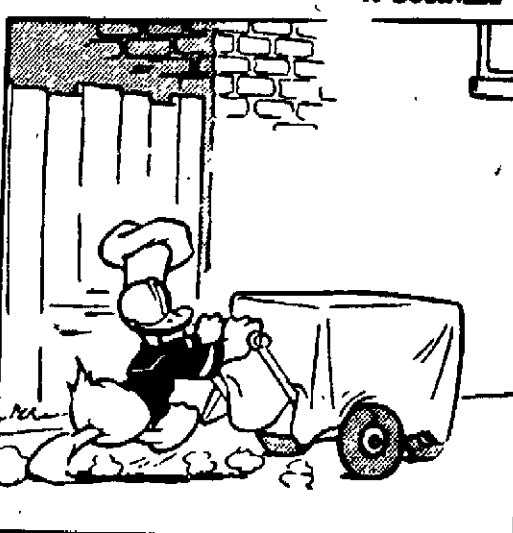

Mrs. Hunt sailed through the hall without a glance at the two left behind. The sound of their car soon died, leaving the silence unbroken behind them.

Continued tomorrow.

OFFICE CAT
By Junius

The New York Fair is beyond question the most telling tribute to American genius that has ever been paid. It is superlative in everything except gate receipts.

It is possible to leave something out of the most explicit instructions:

Disgruntled Sergeant (as he climbed into the barber's chair): "I want a shave. No hair-cut, no shampoo, no rum, witch-hazel, hair-tonic, hot towels or face-massage. I don't want the manicurist to hold my hand, nor the bootblack to handle my feet. I don't want to be brushed off, and I'll put on my coat myself. I just want a plain shave, with no trimmings. Understand that?"

Barber (quiet)—Yes sir, Lather, sir?

Customs Agent—What have you to declare?

American Tourist (returning from Europe)—I declare that I am glad to get back.

A bald-headed man once argued with a barber that he ought not to charge full price for cutting his hair because he had so little of it to cut. "I don't charge you for cutting your hair," the barber retorted. "I charge you for the time spent hunting for it."

Lady—So you are on a submarine? Tell me, what do you do?

Sailor—Oh, I run forward and hold her nose when we're going to dive.

The less you have to do with some people, the less you will be worse off.

Man—I just made a tall man short.

Friend—Wonderful! But tell me, how did you accomplish such a feat?

Man—Quite simple. old top. I just borrowed $10 from him.

Autumn Best of All
My soul and all its sorrows with the autumn seem to blend. My life with many errors, is a fitting time to end.

And yet, of all the seasons that circle this great ball, the hazy days of autumn to me are best of all.

Employer (to newly employed typist)—Now I hope you thoroughly understand the importance of punctuation?

Stenographer—Oh, yes, indeed. I always get to work on time.

Gossip has its advantages. Fear of it sometimes keeps us out of trouble.

Friend—Old man, you look all played out. What you need is a vacation.

Man—That's what's the trouble. I've just returned from one.

Capital expenditure of at least $200,000 is contemplated by a Sydney, Australia, group which is taking steps to develop the fishing industry.

Shokan, Sept. 11.—Mr. and Mrs. P. Vigilantes returned to New York Saturday after having been guests at the B. Nadal farmhouse for several weeks.

Mrs. Frank Graham has gone back to her home in Illinois, following a visit with relatives here. Mrs. Graham, who was Miss Anna Bell of the old village, took in the World's Fair during her stay in the east.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Phillips of New York are spending a vacation at the Winchell farmhouse. This is the couple's first visit to Shokan in five years.

Sunday travel in the village was the lightest since early summer. Wet pavements resulted in a three car mixup in which no one was injured but considerable damage was done to fenders and bumpers. The mishap took place about 11 o'clock at the post office.

Mrs. C. G. Fuller is having an addition made to the rear of her home on the north boulevard.

Thursday morning, September 11, 1913, there was 14 feet of water in the Esopus Creek gorge at the base of the new Ashokan Dam, the hole in the masonry having been sealed up two days previous. On the 15th the water was level with the top of Bishop's Falls, or 27 feet deep. The work of clearing the best basin of vegetation was still in progress, and Esopus water was being diverted to the headworks waste channel, pending completion of the clearing job and construction of embankments. Contractors had just begun work on the new boulevards around the reservoir.

John Arnold and son, Anthony, of Gunderland, drove here in their truck and spent Sunday with Mrs. Arnold at the home of the latter's brother, Earl Elmendorf. Mr. Arnold, who operates a large truck

Eden Pledges No Peace Until the Nazis Fall

London, Sept. 12 (AP).—An official announcement that British troops are in action alongside the French in attacks on Germany's Siegfried line quickly emphasized today government pledges that Britain will fight until the Nazi regime is smashed.

Said a communiqué of the ministry of information: "No confidence is felt in any assurance (Hitler) may give, and Great Britain is therefore justified in requiring that peace should be concluded with a German government whose word may be trusted."

Said Anthony Eden, secretary of state for dominion affairs: "There can be no peace until Nazism is banished from the earth. The people of this country are ready to fight a very long war if need be to rid the world of Hitlerism."

The number of British troops in France and their western front position were not given in the information ministry's communiqué announcing they were taking part in advances on German territory.

The announcement in the official London Gazette said merely that transport of expeditionary forces took several days and was accomplished without accident. It was the first official indication British troops had been moved into fighting position facing Germany.

Shortly before 3 a. m. (9 p. m. Monday, EST.), the ministry of information said word of the British troop movement could be expected to be followed by the German forces (Landing of British troops was reported from France last week).

Neutral observers had noted widespread anxiety among the British people to "get on" with reinforced action to stop Hitler on land, at sea and in the air after nine days of the British-German state of war.

Authorized sources had denounced vigorously what is said was German propaganda in neutral countries to the effect that with developments in Poland "the show is over."

The ministry of information devoted an entire bulletin last night to the Saturday address of Field Marshal Hermann Goering which British circles had characterized as a German "peace feeler."

He kept none of his "many promises" to foreign countries, and that Britain was justified in insisting "peace should be concluded with a German government whose word may be trusted."

"Great Britain is fighting for a return to decency in international relations," said the communiqué.

This was one of the chief points of Eden's speech last night in an international radio broadcast. The address, however, was not prominently displayed in British newspapers.

In 1914, Britain declared war on Germany August 4, and British troops were ready for action in France 17 days later.

The time Britain declared war with Germany September 3, and the official announcement, the Tommies were in action followed on the ninth succeeding day.

County Treasurer V. T. Pine and his office force are now busy receiving payments from many of the county taxpayers who are calling to pay their county taxes for the current year. The county treasurer is anxious to have every one know that if he desires to pay county taxes without the addition of any penalty, except the usual 5 per cent collection fee, they must call at the county treasurer's office some day this month.

Last June the board of supervisors passed a resolution that all taxes paid by October 1 could be paid without penalty and as there are a very large number of taxes unpaid the county treasurer urges that these taxes be paid this month as there has been no provision made for any waiving of penalties after October 1, when interest at the rate of 10 per cent per annum from last February 1 will have to be added.

The county treasurer's force is also busy preparing to advertise all properties for redemption that were sold at last December's sale and have not yet been redeemed. As this means an added expense to all such properties the county treasurer takes this opportunity to urge anyone who can, to redeem their property from such sale before the redemption advertising is added, which will be about September 20.

Texas Comes Up With Champ No. 2

Texas can score a clean sweep in American golf this year if one of her boys gets "hot" in the National Amateur tournament in September. Fort Worth's Byron Nelson won the National Open and a few days ago San Antonio's long-hitting Betty Jameson captured the women's crown. Betty is 20 and scales around 150 pounds. She won the Southern title at 15.

Glens Falls open, to his winnings today.

Shute, playing from West Newton, Mass., breezed around the Glens Falls Country Club course yesterday afternoon in 68, four under par, to win a playoff for the title from Horton Smith, Oak Park, Ill., who slipped to a three-over-par 75. Smith took $600 second money.

The playoff became necessary when both finished the four rounds of the tournament with 276 totals. Gene Sarazen, Brookfield, Conn., took third money, $400, with a 277.

McLean Is Batting Champ Of City Baseball League Al Davis Is Second in Line

George "Red" McLean, Independent shortstop, captured the City League 1939 individual batting championship by compiling a sensational .464 seasonal average. McLean, who racked up a 500 first half slugging mark, clipped base hits at a 417 last half pace to annex the Steve Connelly championship trophy. Al "Sluggo" Davis, Boiceville center fielder, garnered secondary honors with a gaudy .444 rating.

McLean, competing in 18 two-loop tilts, bashed out 26 base knocks in 56 trips while tallying 18 times, good for top-ranking honors. Davis, last half batting leader, maced the pill safely 23 times in 52 tries while clubbing out a home run, triple and three doubles.

Maines Hits Well

Tommy Maines, Indies ball-hawk, wound up in the third slot with a .375 yearly figure. Maines, enjoying his best City League season, slammed out a dozen bingles in 32 trials during 13 games. The Powerhouse's left fielder uncorked two round-trippers, a triple, three doubles and drove home 14 runs for a banner year.

Vince Stoll staged a last half batting spurge to climax his best dusty circuit season with a .372 figure. The Wiltywicks backstop, after a dismal first half, slammed out 16 hits in 43 efforts. Paulie Misove, Jones Dairy outfielder-pitcher, showed the way for the Dairy-men with a .369 mark. Misove's initial half 500 mark bolstered him over the wire ahead of Al Nussbaum, Rangers speed-boy.

Nussbaum Shines

Cavorting in his first twilight campaign, Nussbaum wound up with a .350 final tally on "14 for 40". Joe Dulin, veteran Grunles first base guardian, again finished in the charmed circle, slamming out a .345 mark. Chappie Van Derzee, Dairyman's shortstop, and Speed Scherer, first baseman tied at .326 seasonal average rating. Van Derzee also enjoyed a whirlwind campaign with the stick. Andy Dykes' .325 completes the City League seasonal "Big Ten".

The complete 1939 seasonal individual batting marks as compiled by City League Secretary Geoghan show the following yearly averages:

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

(By The Associated Press)

The last major inter-sectional offensives open on the eastern and western fronts of the big league battleground today, with the pennant and the pot of gold pretty certain to go to the lads who hold their own in this final swing 'round the circuits.

As matters now stand, the New York Yankees probably will have their fourth straight American League flag nailed to the mast before the batubut gets its weekly workout Saturday night. The Slaughterhouse Squad, waltzing along on an eight-game winning streak and a 17-game lead, despite Boston's 11-9 decision over the Athletics yesterday, needs only four more victories to clinch.

They're hotter than a pair of World's Fair feet right now, those Yanks, and it shouldn't be any track at all to take those four wins in their own back yard from the Cleveland Indians and the Detroit Tigers.

As matters now stand, the junior circuit situation shapes up this way:

	W	L	Pct.	Hand play
Yankees	96	38	.716	20
Red Sox	79	55	.590	17

Over in the National League, those Cincinnati Reds just won't give the home folks a chance to draw a deep breath. While they've looked as much like champions recently as a Second Avenue stickball squad, it's going to be awfully tough for them, playing at home in the Rhineland, and triple to drive five runs home.

Campaign to Open To Aid Refugees

The acceptance by Joseph Levine of the chairmanship of the local fundraising campaign in behalf of the United Jewish Appeal for refugees and overseas needs to meet the grave problem of oppression and homelessness in European lands, was announced today by the Kingston drive committee, which will sponsor the campaign in this city.

Dr. Samuel Stern and Dr. Joseph Jacobson of this city have consented to serve as honorary chairmen. Arthur B. Ewig is to act as vice chairman, Dr. Sidney Wolfe as treasurer, and Joseph Farkas as secretary.

The campaign in this city will be part of the United Jewish Appeal for refugees and overseas needs' national campaign of which Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver of Cleveland, and Rabbi Jonah B. Wise of New York, are the national chairmen.

This great nation-wide drive combines the fund-raising efforts of the American Jewish joint distribution committee, the United Palestine Appeal and the National Coordination Committee Fund, Inc., the principal American agencies engaged in the work of relief and reconstruction among the Jewish communities of Germany, Austria, Poland, Rumania, Czechoslovakia and other lands in central and eastern Europe; in the task of rescuing the refugees and settling them in permanent homes in Europe, Palestine and overseas lands, and in the historic task of rebuilding Palestine as the Jewish national home.

Discussing the purposes of the campaign, the announcement issued by the Kingston drive committee states in part:

"The critical situation of the Jews in Germany and other parts of Europe has reached a state of emergency which can be met only by the most heroic action and sacrificial support of the United Jewish Appeal for refugees and overseas needs."

"We are confronted with the problem of sustaining life in the Jewish community in Germany which has been driven to the brink of extermination by a campaign of unprecedented ruthlessness; we are called upon to answer the heartrending pleas for immediate aid and rehabilitation of the Jews of Poland, Rumania and Hungary. Moreover, we must cope with the desperate situation of many thousands of refugees who are today wandering over the face of Europe in a tragic search for a new home."

GERMANS APPROACH POLISH UKRAINE

On the basis of latest available information, principally from the German high command, this map shows the approximate area of Poland now reported under German control, as Nazis hammer away at Warsaw. In the south, the Germans announced crossing of the San river in the Jaroslavl sector—putting them virtually in the Polish Ukraine. Berlin reports indicated the Polish army fighting at the Modlin fortress northwest of Warsaw was trapped. Latest German reports on the army advancing from East Prussia said it had taken Lomza and was forcing its way across the Narew river at Wlzn.

Germans Predict Fall Of Warsaw in 48 Hours

St. Peter's Holy Name Meeting

The first fall meeting of St. Peter's Holy Name Society was held last evening at the school hall attended by an enthusiastic gathering of over 150 men. President George Reis called the business session to order at 8 o'clock. Many matters of importance were discussed, including the society's participation in the Holy Name rally to be held in this city October 1. The various committee reports brought out the deep interest the members were taking in the various activities. A society bowling league is being formed and organization of a ping pong tournament is nearly completed. A study club will be inaugurated this fall.

The Rev. Henry E. Herdgen, spiritual director of the society, gave a short talk in which he expressed his pleasure at the large crowd and commended the officers and chairmen upon the manner in which they were doing their work. The entertainment was in the form of several reels of sound films relative to deep sea fishing, which met with unanimous approval of the men. Following this refreshments and games were enjoyed in the club rooms.

Continue Search For Death Car

State Police pressed their search yesterday for the car which struck and fatally injured James Rowles, an employee at the Wiltwyck Mission at West Park, Saturday night. Garages had service stations in this area were being checked for the car which was damaged when it struck the man as he walked along the highway toward the mission late Saturday night with a companion.

State Trooper John Metzger of the B. C. I. said no trace of the car or driver had yet been found but that the search was being continued. Portions of the damaged car headlight were found at the scene and it is known that the headlight and the fender of the car which struck the man and continued on with out stopping were both damaged. The make of the car has been ascertained.

With the German Army West of Warsaw, Sept. 12 (AP)—The German counterattack to grind down the first organized Polish attack of the present war was resumed at dawn today north of Lodz, in the region of Kutno, Piatek and Leczyca.

Warsaw's fate was being decided today on two fronts—the one north of Lodz, 60 miles almost due west of the Polish capital and the other at the city's gates. The German high command was confident Warsaw, caught in a pincer attack, would fall within 24 to 48 hours.

A few miles north of Lodz, important textile center, a single German division was battering five or six encircled Polish divisions in the hope of capturing 50,000 to 60,000 men, which would be the largest body yet taken. (A German division numbers 10,000 to 12,000 men.)

The Polish army, consisting of troops retreating from Poznan province and the corridor, on Sunday staged the first big offensive made by any Polish force so far in an attempt to break out and fall back on Warsaw. They were halted Sunday night after advancing several miles, and on Monday morning a German counterattack was started.

But even if the Polish divisions should escape their 12-mile-wide "pocket" near Lodz, they would have to encounter another German line drawn up west of Warsaw and between them and the capital. This line, which received heavy reinforcements this morning, extends south of the city.

Closing Down Vise

Another German force was closing down the vise on the Polish capital by driving toward Warsaw from the northeast. It had crossed the Narew river in its advance out of East Prussia.

A third German army, meanwhile, was tightening its hold on Lublin, railway point 100 miles southeast of Warsaw and approximately 140 miles east of Lodz.

The Germans want both cities to surrender without siege. An armored car division which entered Warsaw a few days ago after driving up from Silesia has withdrawn to the outskirts of the city and is awaiting the outcome of the battle near Lodz. This maneuver was made, the Germans said, to discourage the Poles from bombarding their capital.

I have just completed two days of roaming about with the first group of foreign correspondents permitted at the front by the German high command. Everywhere I found the Poles had been fighting harder than I had imagined from reading the German communiques. Every inch of the Polish retreat, despite its swiftness, has been contested, but the fighting for the most part has been individual. No general plan seems to have existed. Or if it did exist, it was disregarded.

Every town and village from the German border to the line which now is just west of the capital. Today these towns are largely in ruins—either destroyed by bombs from the air, burned down, or both.

The destruction in the area through which I passed, and it was typical of all of western Poland, resembled northern France after the World War. The few walls still standing showed the gouges of machine-gun bullets. Hundreds of farm houses were burned so thoroughly that scarcely any debris remained and only the chimneys stood gaunt in the saddened landscape.

I entered Poland at Ketno in Silesia and there, six miles from the border, found the first trenches. They had been dug in a graveyard.

Costly Sleep

Copenhagen, Sept. 12 (AP)—The costly drowsiness of a well-fed Bogense Village restaurant keeper almost pushed war news off Copenhagen front pages today. The restaurant keeper had bet 5,000 crowns (about $950) he could walk around the outside of Denmark in three months, pulling the nation's oldest car. With one day to spare and only three miles to go he stopped at an inn and enjoyed a pre-victory feast. Then he overslept and lost the bet by an hour.

French Advance, Battle Of Saar Taking Shape

By JOHN MARTIN

Paris, Sept. 12 (AP)—The French army was reported today to have maneuvered into position to threaten Saarbruecken after hurling back German counter-thrusts to the east of that industrial center.

The war ministry's communique for this morning, however, indicated the French had not immediately followed up any such advantage. It said there had been "a calm night along the entire front."

Previous fighting on a 100-mile sector of the western front between the Moselle and Rhine rivers strengthened the impression a major battle was shaping up—an engagement, which history may record as the battle of the Saar.

British troops were reported moving up into position already established by the French.

"Despite enemy resistance our attacks continued to show serious progress on a front of some 12 miles east of the Saar," said last night's war communique. This was taken to mean the French were taking at a point some distance north of the French border town of Saargemines in the German area between the Saar and Blies rivers. The Saar runs north from Saargemines through Saarbruecken, chief German city in the rich Saar basin.

Saarbruecken was emptied of civilians days ago. French military sources believed the German army soon would fall back into defensive positions behind the industrial capital.

Bitter fighting also was reported in the area north of Sierck, further west where the Saar river shifts its course northward to parallel the Moselle river along the frontier of the neutral principality of Luxembourg.

Germans and French fought hand-to-hand in that wooded area between the two rivers.

The German lines were said to be held by young reservists because older soldiers were engaged in the Polish offensive on the other side of Germany. However, several divisions were said to have been diverted already to the western front to meet the French threat.

The French described their losses as slight as compared with the advances achieved. They said some German prisoners had been taken, that gas had not been used, and that much of the fighting was under cover of night.

Thousands of men still were flocking to the French side for military service. Stephan Osusky, who was Czechoslovakia's minister to Paris, said he expected 50,000 Czechs to fight under the Czech flag.

Poles also were enlisting by the thousands for service on the western front under French command. At Lille, Jeanne Pouille, fugitive from the Devil's Island penal colony, appeared to join the French army. He had been living in Belgium after escaping through Brazil and French Guiana 13 years ago.

MAJOR BATTLE LOOMS ON WEST FRONT

Arrows indicate approximately, on the basis of best information, principally from Paris, how French and German forces are locked in a "no man's land" on the western front. German drive seeks to thrust the French off German soil—out of the triangle formed by the Moselle and Saar rivers. Southeast to Saarbruecken Germans were counter-attacking across the Saar valley. East of the Saar river, the French reported local advances. Swiss reports said French repulsed the first German patrols to enter French territory—east of Saargemines.
